CONTENTS.

I. A Table of the Two Hundred and Fourteen Elementary Parts of Chinese Characters, called by Europeans Radicals or Keys, and by the Chinese 字部 Tsze-poo.

II. A Table of the Characters contained in the first volume, arranged under the preceding Two Hundred and Fourteen Radicals. In this Table the Character sought is to be found by the number of strokes contained in it, exclusive of the Radical. When found in the Table, the pronunciation directs to its place in the first volume, where it is defined.

III. A Table of Characters arranged according to the number of strokes in each, inclusive of the Radical; the intention of this Table, called by the Chinese 檢字 Keen-tsze, is to enable the Student to distinguish the Radical part of a difficult Character. In the first and second pages, the compound form is given thus, Fan tsung jin chay, shŭh jin poo 凡从亻者屬人部 all parts of characters according to this (or written thus) 亻 belong to the 人 Jin Radical. Next follow the Characters arranged under Yih hwă 一畫 one stroke of the pencil in writing them; the first six, are called Show-poo 首部 the head's of classes, being themselves Radicals. The two subsequent characters are under 丿部 Peih poo, the Radical 丿 Peih, and so of the rest. In this Table are many Characters not in the Alphabetic part of the Dictionary; but they will appear in the continuation of the First Part. The Table is taken from the Imperial Dictionary, and begins from the right hand, in the Chinese manner, as the following Table also does.

IV. Peen sze 辨字 a table to distinguish similar characters, arranged under classes, where two characters are alike, to three, four, and five, that are similar, but really different; there are in Chinese, as in all other written Languages, many varieties which do not constitute a different letter or character; and there are a few slight varieties which do make an essential difference. In this Table, which is also taken from Kang-he's Dictionary, the explanations are in Chinese, which the learner will after a short time, easily comprehend; and they may serve to correct some errors which have escaped the Author in other parts of the Work. Example (乀) 音弗 Yin fŭh pronounced Fŭh, 左戾也 Tso le yay, denotes distorted or bent towards the left. 乀. 音移 Yin e, pronounced E; Lew yay 流也 To flow.

V. A Table of English Words, arranged Alphabetically, from which a reference is made by figures to the Chinese words in the first volume of the second part of the Dictionary. It is expected that this will be of use to Students who have made some progress in the Language, by suggesting words when they speak or compose in Chinese.

VI. Tung wăn 同文 being a collection of varieties of the character which do not constitute a difference; containing examples of the Running Hand and Seal Character, arranged Alphabetically, in the same manner as in the body of the work, where the definitions are given. By reviewing this collection of Characters, and by copying them, the Student will become acquainted with the running hand, some knowledge of which is indispensable for practical purposes, since letters and other documents are very generally written in it, and the European Student who wishes to write in it, can by this arrangement find characters with more facility than by any native Dictionary.

NOTE.

The references by figures in the following Index, are to direct to words or phrases in the body of the Work, which will assist the memory of, or suggest terms to, a Person who already knows the Chinese Language to some extent, when he is composing in that Language; this end it is hoped they will serve; but it is not expected that they will enable a Person almost wholly ignorant of the Language, to select terms by which to express his thoughts in Chinese. *

* Mr. P. P. Thoms has been at considerable pains in comparing the numbers of the following Index with the Syllabic Dictionary, and also the Index of Radicals.
